THE GRUMPY OLD CHRISTMAS SHOW

SANTA'S (SURPRISING) ORIGINS

He is loveable, congenial, giving and jolly. What's more he knows everything, as any child will readily testify. He is a colorful old man, whose visits are eagerly awaited by millions of children each year and who, for a little while, makes the world a much happier place. Is Santa Claus a good influence on children, or a bad influence whose image merely commercializes Christmas and who takes the reason out of the season, as some charge?

Where did Santa come from? It will surprise many to learn that Santa Claus (as we know him today) came out of the church itself through the charity of a very devout and caring priest.

NOW BEAR IN MIND THAT THIS IS A TRUE, historically documented account. Approximately 200 years after the birth of Christ, a meeting of the elders of a little catholic church in Myra, Turkey had just been called to order. They needed to appoint a bishop but no fitting candidate could be found. So great was the need that they decided to pray. Out at sea, a ship battled a raging storm.

The crew valiantly fought to keep it afloat. Trunks were being thrown overboard to lighten the load as frightened passengers held onto whatever they could to keep from being swept overboard while others huddled in their cabins.

The ravaging waves tore some wood from the sides of the ship. "Nicholas...NICHOLAS!" someone yelled frantically. It had been noised about that a man named Nicholas, who was known to be a man of God, was on board. Out of a cabin, in response to the call, came a man with a long white beard. Holding on to the rail of the tossing ship, he began to pray for the storm to cease. As he prayed he lifted his hands heavenward. Miraculously, the storm calmed. The crippled ship drifted into the harbor of Myra.

The elders of the little catholic church in Myra suddenly stopped in the midst of their intense prayer, opened their eyes and looked around at each other, startled at a message from God that had come to each of them in the form of a vision; they were to appoint as their bishop, the first man named Nicholas who would, within the hour, enter the church to pray. As the leaning ship hobbled into the port and was docked, Nicholas disembarked and made his way into the village to seek a church.

He wanted to give thanks to God for His intervention during the storm that could have killed everyone on board. Finding the church, he eagerly approached it. The heads of the elders turned toward the door as it slowly opened. The stately man with the snow-white beard entered, and, focused on the altar, made his way down to the front and knelt in a prayer of thanksgiving. As he rose to leave the elders approached him. "What is your name?" asked one. "Nicholas." was the reply. "God has sent you to us to be our new bishop," said another. The group joyfully fitted the surprised Nicholas with a long red priestly robe and miter.

Nicholas quickly became known as, "The Bishop of Miracles," because of so many spectacular answers to his prayers. Unlike most priests, Bishop Nicholas was wealthy through family inheritance.

In his mind, wealth came from God and belonged to God. The very reason for his existence was to serve God. And that is how he lived his life. Nicholas became increasingly concerned about a custom in Turkey. If little girls did not have a dowry so that they could marry, they would be sold into slavery, which included prostitution.

Bishop Nicholas had given away most of his own fortune so he went about and managed to collect gold from admirers. On December 6th, under cover of darkness, he wrapped the gold coins in several little bags and visited each home that had a daughter without a dowry, dropping a bag of gold through the windows of each, which landed on the hearth where the little girl's clothes would be drying. When the gold was discovered the next morning, the family rejoiced. Their little daughters were saved from slavery.

NICHOLAS CONTINUED WHAT WAS TO become an annual tradition. Nobody knew the identity of the mysterious benefactor who would slip around the village on that date each year. On one such night, as Nicholas put his arm through the window to drop the bag of gold, instead of it landing on the hearth, the bag fell into a stocking that was hanging in front of the fireplace to dry. It was found the next morning, to the delight of the family. Which, by the way, is how the custom of hanging up Christmas stockings came to be. Shortly before Nicholas's death, which occurred on December 6th, the date of his annual visit, it was learned that he was the individual who brought so much joy to so many families.

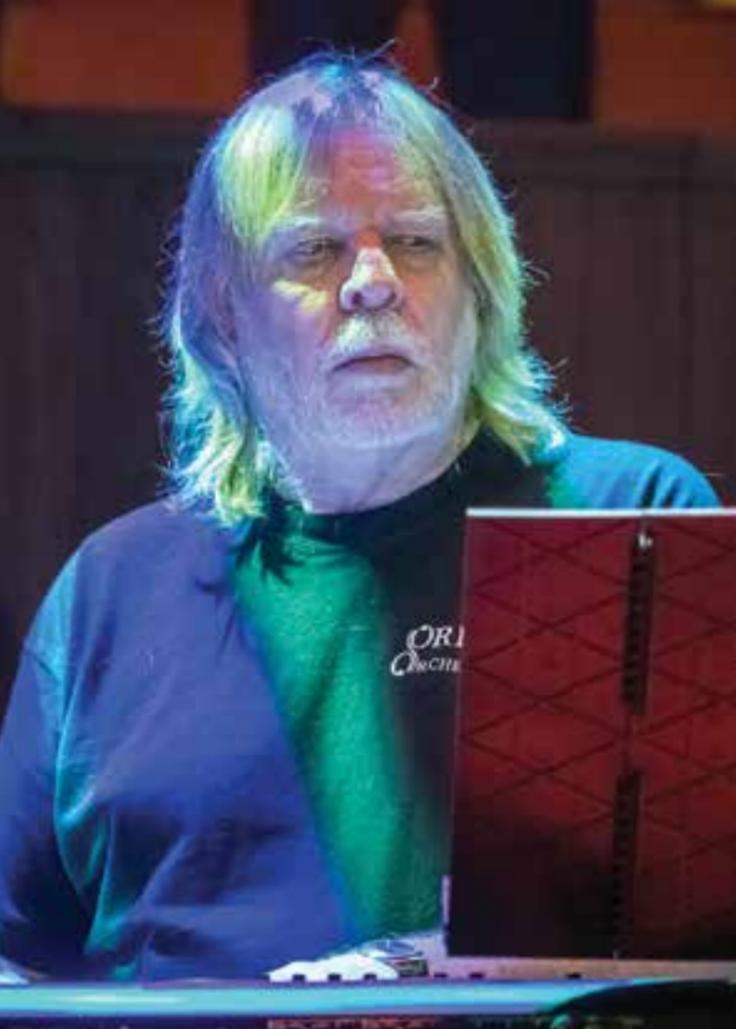

Five hundred years later, in the 9th Century, Nicholas was canonized by the Roman Catholic Church, hence the name, Saint Nicholas. And since the celebration of Christmas came after the life of St. Nicholas, he actually preceded Christmas, as we know it today. As the story of St. Nicholas spread, French nuns in the 12th Century began making annual night-time visits to poor families with children, leaving fruit and nuts, which these families could not afford.

The nuns made their gift-giving rounds on what became known as, "St. Nicholas Eve," December 5th. The tradition spread throughout the Old World and across the ocean to the New. Many people to this day celebrate Christmas on December 6th. St. Nicholas became the Patron Saint of many countries including Russia, becoming a major ingredient in the Russian Christmas celebration. England made St. Nicholas, "Father Christmas."

Germany picked up on that title and in France, he became known as "Papa Noel." As the various forms of Nicholas began to emerge in the secular world over the years, some unanticipated problems arose; protests which came out of...the church!

Martin Luther pounded his pulpit proclaiming that the true Christmas message was being lost by the St. Nicholas connection. The Dutch came to the rescue and adopted what they believed to be a more religious view of Nicholas that would satisfy the critics. The Dutch-German Protestant Reform Movement brought with it the idea that the Christ child should be the standard bearer for Christmas.

The German word for Christ child, "Christkindl," evolved to, "Kris Kringle," yet another version and another irritant for Luther. In 1822, on the night before Christmas, which the world began to celebrate on December 24th, Clement Moore wrote a poem about the gift-giver for his six children. That poem, "The Night Before Christmas," was published the following year in the Sentinel of Troy, New York. Up to that time, Nicholas had taken various forms. He was portrayed with a black beard, then a white beard. He was shown dressed in everything including buckskin.

Mr. Moore defined Nicholas once and for all and renamed him, Santa Claus. He had, no doubt, been influenced by the Dutch who named him, "Sinter (Saint) Klass (short for Nicholas) and that had become, "Sinterklass." Others who spoke broken English, knowing that gold had been found on the hearth by the fireplace, started a new legend. The gift-giver came down the chimney and would land in the cinders of burning embers, so they called him, "Cinder Klaussen," which would in Moore's hands become, Santa Claus. Clement Moore's poem made Santa famous.

HE EVEN NAMED THE REINDEER. NOT ONLY did he name them, he made them fly. He might have taken that idea from the poet, Washington Irving, who wrote a book in 1809 about a Dutch Colonist's dream in which St. Nick came riding over the tops of trees in a wagon wherein he brings yearly presents to the children.

An artist named Thomas Nash, who was a Harper's Weekly cartoonist, began to show what Santa looked like. He dressed him in red, which had been the official color of the priestly robes worn by St. Nicholas and went further by making Santa plump and jolly.

To show how much of a church connection to Santa there is, Clement Moore's father was the Episcopal Bishop of New York, and, Clement Moore himself was Professor of Theology at Union Theological Seminary. In 1897, a little girl named, Virginia Hanlon, had been told that there really was no Santa Claus. She was so disturbed about it that she wrote a letter to the editor of The New York Sun, whose name, by the way, was Francis P. Church...can't get away from that connection. He responded with a story titled, "Yes Virginia, there really is a Santa Claus." And the world breathed a sigh of relief.

IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT THE clearest image of Santa came not from the church, or from a poet, but by, of all things, a soft drink company advertisement! That drawing, known as 'the Coca Cola Santa,' created and drawn by Haddon Sundblom, made him totally definable. And the elves? Well, they were first seen in Ireland as Leprechauns. St. Nicholas has been replaced by the created, Santa, who does indeed delight millions of children.

Christmas is and should be; a time of love and sharing with people in need. It is the one time in the year where we can hear songs proclaiming the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, with others heralding the birth of The Holy Child, Jesus Christ our Saviour coming through the loud speakers of the malls and shopping centres of the secular world. Homes are decorated with lights to proclaim Him. And people are a little nicer to one another at least once a year. ❧

PLEASE HELP THESE CHARITIES

RICK IS A LONG-STANDING PATRON OF THESE ANIMAL CHARITIES. YOUR HELP AND SUPPORT WOULD ALSO BE GREATLY APPRECIATED

FELINE CARE

Our purpose built Cat Rescue Centre is set in three acres of rural and tranquil cat paradise! We offer all our cats a loving home with the hope of finding them their very own 'forever' home. At Feline Care we are not afraid to take on more difficult cases and pride ourselves on our therapeutic work with feral and nervous cats.

The main facility comprises large communal living areas and is uPVC double-glazed with under floor heating. We also have a well equipped Intensive Care Unit for poorly cats and nervous cats who require special handling. Our Jellicle pens give feral cats a secure temporary home while recovering from their operations as part of our 'neuter and return' scheme.

As part of our dedication to the happiness of our residents we rely almost entirely on volunteers. This guarantees that every person working with the cats is here because they love them thus ensuring big purrs all round. We always have room for more volunteers so please get in touch if you have a spare morning to donate... cats can never have enough cuddles!

Please enjoy browsing our website and please let us know if you have any comments or queries.

FRIENDS OF THE ANIMALS

Was then the second floor flat of its founder, Helen Sinclair. For twenty seven years we have been improving the lives of animals from Burnley to the Isle of Wight and from Norfolk to Wales. Our aims are to:

- Offer a subsidised Spaying and Neutering scheme
- To rehome animals that come into our care
- To support 460+ animals at a Sanctuary in the Midlands
- To give educational talks on the care of pets
- To offer support for members of the public in the care of their pets
- We have also: Spayed/Neutered more than 34,000 animals
- Rehomed over 8,800 animals
- And we provide veterinary treatment for almost 4,000 animals every year.

OLDHAM CATS

Oldham Cats is a UK registered charity dedicated to rescuing and re-homing stray, abandoned and unwanted cats and kittens. We have been helping cats in and around the Oldham, Rochdale and Middleton areas of Greater Manchester, since 1995 and gained our charity registration in October of the following year. Since 1998 we have been based at our rescue in Middleton. We find homes for hundreds of homeless and abandoned cats and kittens every year, and we need your help to continue to do so. We are a non-profit, volunteer run organisation and rely on the support of our loyal volunteers, fundraisers and supporters.

We often get asked why we put so much work into rescuing and looking after cats and the only answer is... because we care. Our dedicated team work seven days a week, 365 days a year ensuring the cats and kittens in our care are getting the best possible attention. Making a donation no matter how small will help provide much-needed funds towards food, medicines and veterinary care.

ANIMALS ASIA

I was introduced to Animals Asia by Peter Egan back in 2011 and ever since then I've been in awe of the work Jill Robinson and her team do.

I can't think of a crueller form of animal abuse than bear bile farming. Moon bears are confined for years in tiny cages, offering no moment of respite from excruciating pain, where they eventually die. Since they were cubs, they will have had crude, agonizing catheters in their abdomens and been kept in a perpetual state of hunger and dehydration to maximise bile production.

The 11,200 bile bears in China and Vietnam must yearn for death, but Animals Asia offers them hope and have rescued around 600 bears to date. The bears are crushed in body and spirit and for the lucky ones that are rescued by Animals Asia, it can be a long road to recovery. But Jill's team has some of the best and most specialised bear vets in the world who use their tremendous skills and compassion to give tireless support and love to the bears. Piece by piece, they put the bears back together, physically and psychologically, and then provide safe sanctuary to them for the rest of their days.

I have always been proud to support the charity and it's been such a pleasure to be able to help. I performed a concert for them in May 2016 and was left gobsmacked afterwards when Jill stood up and told me that my wife and I, (Rachel is also involved with Animals Asia), were now proud adopted parents of a Moon Bear!

We named him Cyril and the Animals Asia team worked tirelessly to bring him back to health and slowly but surely he started to improve, even growing blonde hair which was unheard of for a moon bear.

Just as Rachel and I were preparing to travel to China to see Cyril, we received the devastating news that because of his initial appalling and brutal treatment, he now had terminal liver cancer and a few days later we lost our beloved bear.

Towards the end, Cyril sought comfort in fresh and dried banana leaves and hessian sacks. He constructed a gorgeous nest and would gladly accept as much substrate we could offer him. He stopped eating everything but pumpkin and all things sweet. He loved watermelon, sugar cane, condensed milk and pumpkin ice blocks. He would gladly accept the extra pieces of pumpkin that other bears refused. The team took such wonderful care of him until his end.

Cyril was buried by a small group of loving people from both Chengdu and Nanning. He was covered in a blanket of hessian sacks, dried banana leaves, pumpkin, condensed milk and watermelon. We planted a banana tree sapling there so he will have an endless supply of substrates to take with him. RIP Cyril..
